

Porcher Industries announces a change in governance

Éclose-Badinières, August 24, 2026 – After ten years at the helm of Porcher Industries, during which the Group underwent significant transformation, André Genton has decided to hand over his operational responsibilities as Chairman and Chief Executive Officer. He will continue to support the Porcher Industries Group as Chairman of the Supervisory Board.

This governance change reflects the Group's commitment to ensuring continuity in its strategic direction while preparing for the next stages of Porcher industries' development.

In his new role, André Genton will continue to contribute his experience, deep market knowledge, and strategic vision to the benefit of the Group.

This transition comes at a time when Porcher Industries and its subsidiaries are built on solid foundations to pursue their growth ambitions. Over the past ten years, the Group has undergone a profound transformation, driven by an ambitious investment policy totaling more than €120 million.

These investments have strengthened the Group's industrial capabilities, supported its international growth, and enabled continued development across all of its strategic markets.

"These past ten years have been marked by a significant transformation of Porcher Industries and by many collective achievements. Today, the Group has strong assets to support its continued growth. As Chairman of the Supervisory Board, I look forward to continuing to support this momentum while allowing a new leadership team to manage day-to-day operations," said André Genton.

Appointment of the new Chairman and Chief Executive Officer

Effective August 24, 2026, the executive management of Porcher Industries will be entrusted to Damien Chauveinc, who has been appointed Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of the Group.

He joins us with extensive executive leadership experience gained in major international companies across a range of industries, including consulting, specialty materials, industrial equipment, and building products. Throughout his career, he has developed a strong expertise in serving demanding markets such as aerospace, automotive, and various industrial sectors.
